THE FEDERAL DEPOSITORY LIBRARY PROGRAM

Module 7: Cooperative Efforts

This module describes how the library works with GPO and other depository libraries to ensure the effective functioning of the Federal Depository Library Program.

How your library chooses to address the questions within this module is a local determination. There may be several different, but perfectly acceptable, answers to the same question. Guidance for evaluating your own responses is highlighted within various sections and also at the end of the module. The questions address situations at many libraries; however, there may be additional or unique collection development situations at your library that you are encouraged to consider in your overall review of the topics covered in the module.
